

Official Bio

Maegan Lujan is a strategist, storyteller, and thought leader on a mission to motivate and inspire others. Her journey has taken her from high risk to high potential in the boardroom of Toshiba. As a former foster youth who found herself on her own at age 14, Maegan hasn't let herself be defined by the stigma surrounding her upbringing. Rather than fall victim to the instability of her surroundings, Maegan took control of her journey and channeled her energy towards positive growth and self-improvement.

Through both the beautiful and extremely difficult experiences in her life, Maegan learned that no matter who you are—or where you might be in life right now—you can persevere, you can overcome, and you can live the life of your dreams.

With nearly two decades of experience as a leader in business and technology, Maegan has been nominated for the 2019 Women in Business Award from The Orange County Business Journal and recognized as a 2016 Young Influencer and 2019 and 2020 Woman of Influence by The Cannata Report.

In her current role as the Director of Solutions and Services at Toshiba America Business Solutions, Inc., she is responsible for the direction, planning, and overall strategy related to the company's solutions, digital signage, and services portfolio. Maegan also has shared her expertise with crowds across the world at major industry events, workshops, vendor seminars, webinars, and more. Never forgetting the journey that made her who she is today, she is passionate about inspiring and encouraging people from all walks of life to feel comfortable in their own skin and pursue their passions. This is why she regularly dedicates her time and expertise, both on-stage and off, to assisting and speaking out for causes associated with foster care, domestic violence, and youth development.
